NEW ONLINE

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITY

Adolescent Literacy:
Best Practices & Effective Strategies

July 8 — August 2, 2013

The Center for Literacy Education and Research (CLEAR) is offering a new professional development series designed to assist teachers of all content areas with integrating the Common Core Standards for Literacy in History/Social Studies, Science, and Technical Subjects (Grades 6-12).

This self-paced, online module also includes intermittent virtual chat sessions. The cost of this professional development opportunity is only $250!

Participants seeking to more effectively integrate reading and writing strategies into their content area would benefit from this series as a way to build their knowledge about adolescent literacy and best practices.

For more information about this series and how to register, please email Elizabeth Hopper, Director of Targeted Professional Development at hoppere@purdue.edu.

Optional course credit available for additional cost.

Workshop fees are fully refundable until July 8th. After July 8th, no refunds will be issued.
